Reforming Youth Justice

Wednesday 24th February 2010 – Central London

"We believe community sentences work, and the figures bear that out."¹

Ministry of Justice statistics show that community sentences are increasingly effective at preventing youth reoffending. Capita's new Reforming Youth Justice Conference will provide the crucial strategy to ensure you are up to speed with the full range of innovative non-custodial approaches to tackling youth crime.

Custodial sentences at Secure Training Centres cost £191,618 per young offender per year according to the Youth Justice Board (YJB). As budgets are squeezed it is imperative that less costly and more effective methods are used to protect communities.

Sessions at this conference will provide updates on these and other key issues including:

- Strategic guidance on the new powers and orders transforming the youth justice system
- Local innovations using a range of practical approaches to prevent youth reoffending whilst cutting costs
- Building community confidence in non-custodial solutions through a victim centred approach
- Early intervention to prevent the escalation of offending behaviour
- The end-to-end process and multi agency working to ensure successful rehabilitation and resettlement plans

Attend this event to learn how to tackle youth crime more effectively. Ensure that you can provide positive routes out for young offenders whilst giving the public the best possible protection.

Briefing

Education Pathways to Tackle Youth Offending

Thursday 25th February 2010 – Central London

Participation in education and training are major factors in preventing youth offending and reoffending. This briefing takes a comprehensive look at all stages of the young offender journey from early intervention, to education within custody and education in alternative settings.

The Government's Back on Track strategy puts pressure on agencies to modernise education provision for excluded pupils including young offenders. Learn practical advice for securing education pathways to meet an offender's needs, create ownership and provide diversions away from criminal activity.

Benefits of Attending

- Learn from integrated resettlement support projects which combine education support with help for drug addiction, gang membership and housing needs
- Hear how violent strains of youth crime are being successfully tackled in school
- Gather ideas from a skills-led approach preventing offenders becoming NEET and a military-inspired intervention which builds confidence
- Discuss proven strategies to improve educational outcomes, provide life skills, change behaviour and turn lives around
