Domestic Violence Conference

Monday 26th April 2010 – Central London

The recent publication of the Together We Can End Violence Against Women and Girls Strategy has once again brought domestic violence to the top of the agenda.

Capita's 12th National Domestic Violence Conference brings together expert speakers and practitioners to address the challenges of combating domestic violence and to realise the aims in the cross-department strategy.

Every year 1 million women experience at least one incident of domestic abuse – nearly 20,000 women a week¹. Focussing on the themes of prevention, provision and protection this timely event is ideally placed to draw together the key stakeholders needed to ensure that this cycle of domestic violence can be broken.

Featuring best practice case studies and strategic policy updates, this must-attend event provides you with the tools and insight to help build effective partnerships across the key agencies in your local area.

Attend to ensure your organisation can take away ideas and lessons learnt. Network with peers and colleagues from across the UK and examine how to maximise the effectiveness of your multi-agency working and the services you provide for those affected by or at risk of this horrific crime.
